

ENGLISH AND COMMUNICATION

The Department of English and Communication prepares students to be skilled communicators who can navigate any rhetorical situation and offer creative and compelling responses. Through the study of literature, creative or professional writing, social media, mass-mediated messages, or interpersonal conversations, students will gain valuable skills for a wide range of professions. Our programs offer flexible majors and minors that can be easily paired with other majors across the College. Internships and study abroad experiences can be used toward the majors or minors as well. By emphasizing transferable skills, our programs ready students to adapt throughout their careers and meet the needs of an ever-changing world.

Communication Courses

CME 1101 - Interpersonal Communication (Foundations : VFIC - Interpersonal Comm) - 2 cr.

Text, lecture, discussion and laboratory exercises emphasizing relationships, the self, perception, verbal communication, assertiveness and listening skills, nonverbal communication and conflict management.

CME 1107 - Photography I (Conceptions : VCFA - Fine Arts) - 4 cr.

Introduces black and white photography: basic camera operation, film and print development, exposure and photo history and aesthetics. Students will also learn about photojournalism and digital photography. A 35 mm manual camera is required. Film and paper must be purchased by the student.

Equivalent Course: ART 1107

CME 1114 - Media Literacy - 4 cr.

Analyzes the relationship between media and society through the interaction of technology, business, audiences, culture and government. Through lecture, discussion, field trips and other in-class activities, the course reviews the history and theories of mass communication as they relate to specific media.

CME 1777 - Topics in Communication and Media Studies - 1-4 cr.

Topics in Communication and Media Studies.

CME 1999 - Independent Study - 1-4 cr.

Independent Study.

CME 2200 - Presentation and Impact (Conceptions : VCSS - Social Science) - 4 cr.

Studies the elements that make compelling presentations and provides space for students to practice. This course will examine leaders, celebrities, media and political figures to get to the root of what makes a presentation effective. Students focus on the visual, vocal, and verbal components of preparation and delivery related to informative and persuasive speeches.

CME 2201 - The Film as Art (Conceptions : VCFA - Fine Arts) - 4 cr.

Traces the evolution of nonfiction (documentary) and fiction film forms from 1895 to the present; summarizes research describing persuasive effects by means of lectures, screenings, assigned readings and oral presentations.

Equivalent Course: ART 2201

CME 2207 - Photography II - 4 cr.

Explores the zone system for 35mm and various black and white print and film processes including infrared and kodak stocks, print toning and other special effects. Students will also work with studio lighting, view cameras and become familiar with both fine art and commercial studio photography aesthetics and practices.

Prerequisite Courses: CME 1107 or ART 1107

CME 2214 - Writing for Mass Media (Conceptions : VCOP - Electives) - 4 cr.

Introduces students to the fundamentals of media writing, as well as to increase students' knowledge of local, national, and international current events. The emphasis of this course is placed upon writing in a variety of formats under deadline. Specific attention is focused on print news reports, feature stories, media reviews, radio newscasts, press releases, advertising copy, and lateral reporting for the Web.

CME 2220 - Film Genres (Conceptions : VCFA - Fine Arts) - 4 cr.

A genre is a category. To define a genre is to identify a constellation of elements that when brought together in a certain way create a unique entity. This course will examine a specific film genre to identify its organizing principle.

CME 2221 - Conflict in Communication - 4 cr.

Text, lecture, discussion and laboratory exercises emphasizing relationships, the self, perception, verbal communication, assertiveness and listening skills, nonverbal communication and conflict management.

CME 2240 - Intercultural Communication (Conceptions : VCSS - Social Science) - 4 cr.

Employs lectures, documentaries, assigned readings, role playing and research to understand the cultural forces that determine communication behaviors. The course prepares the student to enter another specific culture and communicate more effectively.

CME 2301 - World Cinema (Conceptions : VCFA - Fine Arts) - 4 cr.

World Cinema examines a wide variety of artistically acclaimed non-Hollywood films from around the world both through stylistic and cultural analysis. We will engage films in this course by situating them within particular artistic film movements and unique socio-historical contexts. We will examine the collaboration and collisions of art and politics through both classic and contemporary films. Movies will be screened in their native languages with English subtitles. Films will be viewed through the critical lens provided by interactive lecture/discussions, screenings, written work, and assigned readings.

CME 2307 - Digital Photography (Conceptions : VCFA - Fine Arts) - 4 cr.
Introduces digital image making. Students work with digital SLR cameras and the latest photographic software to produce an entirely digital portfolio. Composition and visual aesthetics are emphasized. Digital SLR cameras are provided by the school.

Equivalent Course: ART 2307

CME 2514 - Media Production: Studio - 4 cr.

Introduces the basic concepts of postmodern media production and networking with an emphasis on creative digital media. The course provides an examination of past, present, and future trends in media production and the development of a postmodern digital media workflow. The latest trends and debates in the field of digital media are explored, including social networking and the latest methods of generating, editing, and syndicating various digital media (text, audio, video, and photo). Other topics include digital radio, iPods and podcasting, the growth of Google and YouTube, social network syndication, cable and Internet advertising. Students develop a working knowledge of practical principles that will be useful for a career in the electronic media, with an emphasis on creating new digital media content in a studio lab environment.

CME 2525 - The Media, Race and Gender (Conceptions : VCSS - Social Science) - 4 cr.

Introduces students to mass-mediated representations of race, class, gender, and sexuality. We survey historically and/or culturally significant artifacts in this course in order to interpret evolving representations.

Equivalent Course: WGS 2525

CME 2777 - Topics in Communication and Media Studies - 0-4 cr.

Addresses special topics as student interest and faculty expertise warrant.

CME 2850 - Media Theory and Research - 4 cr.

Introduces students to media theory and research. The course engages students in the processes of thinking theoretically and researching effectively. The course introduces research tools associated with both the humanities and social sciences.

Prerequisite Courses: CME 1114

CME 3000 - Beauty and Death: Sublime Aesthetics (Integrations : VIPH - Philosophy) - 4 cr.

Beauty and Death surveys different aesthetic theories of the sublime throughout the history of philosophy. Sublime experiences, whether found in nature or art are traditionally considered the most intense of all possible aesthetic feelings. Whereas beauty promotes notions of formal unity harmonizing within limits, the sublime contemplates chaos, death, and feelings that overwhelm the human imagination. The resulting affect has been at times called a feeling of 'negative pleasure' where feelings of beauty and horror become inextricably entangled. As an aesthetic concept the sublime has changed drastically in meaning from classical Greek thought to Enlightenment philosophy and its contemporary rebirth in postmodern aesthetics. However, what all these theories have in common is a focused attention placed on the problem of contemplating the unknown. Thus, in relation to art, nature, and perception the primary aesthetic question of the sublime is deeply involved with dilemma of how to 'present the unrepresentable.' Readings of primary texts will be supplemented by illustrative paintings, music, poetry, fiction, secondary literature, and weekly screenings of films that both correspond and clarify each week's readings.

Equivalent Course: ART 3000, PHL 3000

CME 3101 - Small Group Communication - 4 cr.

Explores communication processes within the context of the small group, emphasizing interpersonal relationships, group dynamics, leadership, and participant functions.

Prerequisite Courses: CME 1101

CME 3301 - Film Topics (Integrations : VIFA - Fine Arts) - 4 cr.

Film Topics engages a changing variety of advanced issues of cinematic representation and genre discussion in Film Studies at an Upper Division level with a Writing Intensive focus. Topics change annually, but course requirements remain the same. Readings are advanced and students write about films, meetings, proposals, draft revisions and an in-class writing workshop. The goal is to engage advanced topics in Film Studies through writings and discussions linking film form and content. The ethics of representation is a key focus of discussion along with formal analysis of 'how' identities are aesthetically represented.

Equivalent Course: ART 3301

CME 3307 - Photojournalism - 4 cr.

Emphasizes the principles and practices of photography for newspaper and magazine publication. Composition, newsworthiness, impact, as well as camera handling, exposure, lighting, darkroom techniques and digital photography will be covered.

Prerequisite Courses: CME 2214

CME 3327 - Color and Landscape Photography (Conceptions : VCFA - Fine Arts) - 4 cr.

Studies color photographic aesthetics and theory; these principles are then applied to the practice and technique of landscape photography. Digital SLR cameras are required and are provided by the school.

Equivalent Course: ART 3327

CME 3445 - Argumentation (Integrations : VIOP - Electives) - 4 cr.

Examines the elements of persuasive speaking and argumentation. Begins with persuasive presentations and progresses to the formal study of argumentation framed by the Toulmin model of reasoning. Using this model, students will study the four primary types of warrants and the four primary types of argumentative claims. The class concludes with the argument of cases.

CME 3514 - Media Production: Field - 4 cr.

Research, writing and production of video and audio news stories, mini-documentaries, commercials and features. Lab assignments include location recording of actual events and studio production experiences for both video and audio. An introduction to video and audio editing.

Prerequisite Courses: CME 2514

CME 3777 - Topics in Communication and Media Studies - 1-4 cr.

Addresses special topics as student interest and faculty expertise warrant.

CME 3999 - Independent Study - 1-8 cr.

Independent Study.

CME 4041 - Web Design - 4 cr.

Explores the design principles that characterize successful Web sites and use modern tools for creating Web sites. Design issues will include the differences between print and electronic media, working within the limits of the technology, and how the user's contexts and goals affect Web design. Web sites will be critiqued from both an aesthetic and functional standpoint and students will be required to design and build fully functional Web sites.

Equivalent Course: CIS 4041

CME 4214 - Online Media Writing - 4 cr.

Learning advanced reporting techniques, news judgment and news gathering skills for feature writing, column writing and editorial writing in print and online media. The course includes researching, interviewing, developing sources for various stories, as well as the principles and practices of editorial decision-making from copyediting to layout. Includes the skills to use social networking and online publishing as a journalistic tool.

Prerequisite Courses: CME 2214

CME 4220 - Great Filmmakers (Integrations : VIFA - Fine Arts) - 4 cr.

Studies the life, significant work, and unique artistic choices made by different historically significant film directors. The directors studied can be considered auteurs insofar as they establish consistent artistic signatures as authors of films while successfully working within the restrictions of the film industry.

Equivalent Course: ART 4220

CME 4414 - Media Criticism - 4 cr.

Applies a variety of critical-theoretical perspectives to consider issues of media production, texts and audiences.

Prerequisite Courses: CME 1114

CME 4417 - Mass Media Law and Ethics (Integrations : VIOP - Electives) - 4 cr.

Studies first Amendment rights, government regulation, Supreme Court decisions and ethical standards and conflicts are analyzed. Case studies address libel, privacy, regulation, and ethical issues.

Prerequisite Courses: CME 1114

CME 4420 - Film and Literature (Integrations : VIFA - Fine Arts/Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Compares written and cinematic texts. A variety of film theories will be discussed in conjunction with image creation. Narrative issues - theme, style and characterization - will also be covered. This course can only be accounted to one Veritas area.

Explores late 19th and early 20th century printing techniques as alternatives to modern photo methods. Students use the sun as a light source to print cyanotypes (blue prints), van dyke (brown prints) and gum bichromate images. Modern techniques such as infrared photography are also included.

Prerequisite Courses: ART 1107 or CME 1107

Equivalent Course: ART 4427

CME 4445 - Persuasion - 4 cr.

Deals with the wide variety of persuasion theories focusing on the study of attitude change. We will focus on the social scientific approach to Persuasion.

CME 4555 - Internship - 1-16 cr.

Done in a professional business setting or other appropriate setting related to the student's field of interest. The student is supervised by a site supervisor. Evaluation of performance will be completed by the site supervisor, internship advisor and student. Students may obtain additional information about internships from the CME chair.

Prerequisite Courses: Acceptance into the Communication and Media Studies major or minor; or exception made by department approval.

CME 4777 - Topics in Communication and Media Studies - 0-4 cr.

Special topics are addressed as student and faculty involvement warrant.

CME 4999 - Independent Study - 1-12 cr.

English Courses

ENG 1110 - First Year Composition (Foundations : VFFC - First Year Comp) - 4 cr.

Helps students build rhetorical knowledge, develop critical thinking skills, and practice writing processes. By doing so, students gain transferable knowledge and skills that they can apply to a wide range of fields, disciplines, and writing situations. Students can expect to practice some of the types of writing that they may encounter in their college careers, such as summaries, analysis papers, academic arguments, reviews, critiques, and papers built on research. ENG 1110 serves as a foundation for future writing practice within specific disciplines, where students will encounter different tasks, audiences, and purposes under the guidance of faculty from across the College.

ENG 2000 - Introduction to English Studies - 4 cr.

Offers prospective or recently declared English majors and minors a singular opportunity for discussion with like-minded students. In this required, foundational course, you will be introduced to the skills that characterize literary studies: rigorous close reading of texts in different genres, a critical vocabulary for further work in the field, and familiarity with the major theoretical approaches to literature (New Historicist, feminist, and deconstructivist, for example) as well as the development of their practical applications. You will also learn and employ basic literary research tools. The English Program recommends that you enroll in this required gateway course as a first-year student or sophomore.

ENG 2105 - Investigative Writing - 2 cr.

Explores theory and practice of research skills in preparation for writing an article-length essay, report, review of literature, literary or cultural critique, memoir, etc. Focuses on developing a proposal, producing a working bibliography, developing an outline or focus statement, writing drafts, and using discipline-specific formats as appropriate. Excellent preparation for McNair students and liberal arts majors intending to pursue graduate school as well as others interested in investigative writing.

Prerequisite Courses: ENG 1110

ENG 2203 - Native American Literature (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Organized chronologically as a survey of 20th and 21st century Native American Literature. Classes focus on the historical, political, and social conditions that produce and shape Native American literature and examine how that literature fits into the canon of American literature.

Equivalent Course: NAS 2203

ENG 2204 - African American Literature (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Organized chronologically as a survey of 19th, 20th, and 21st century African American literature. Classes focus on the historical, political, and social conditions that produce and shape African American literature and examine how that literature fits into the canon of American literature.

ENG 2205 - Chicana/o Literature (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Organized chronologically as a survey of 19th, 20th, and 21st century Chicana/o literature. Classes focus on the historical, political, and social conditions that produce and shape Mexican American literature and examines how that literature fits into the canon of American literature.

ENG 2220 - Medieval and Renaissance Worlds in Literature (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Explores the study of medieval and Renaissance texts in their historical, cultural, and literary contexts. The course examines various genres and subjects in an effort to understand what texts from a distant past reveal about their own cultures and how they might speak to a 21st century audience. Texts are selected from a range of cultures, such as medieval and Renaissance France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Russia, Scandinavia, Spain, and Wales, as well as Arabia and the Jewish Diaspora.

ENG 2260 - Contemporary Movements in American Poetry (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Examines selected readings from the 20th and 21st centuries. Students in ENG 2260 Contemporary Movements in American Poetry will find a foothold in the vast and varying landscape of American poetry. Attention is given to the evolution of the art form over the last 100 years via focus on specific literary movements within poetry. As students come to a better understanding of each movement and the poets who work within them, they will also come to some better understanding of what makes a poem a poem.

ENG 2270 - Studies in Literature (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Studies selected genres such as the Bible, fantasy literature, science fiction, murder mysteries, or the Gothic novel.

ENG 2310 - Magic and Demonology (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Engages with literary and dramatic descriptions and representations of magic and demonology from early modern literature and drama to the present day "Harry Potter" phenomenon.

ENG 2320 - Literary Magazine Production Lab: The Freshwater Review - 0-4 cr.

In this hands-on, experiential lab, after soliciting and acquiring work from artists across the world, we will edit, copyedit, design, typeset, proofread, print, publicize, and distribute a new edition of the Freshwater Review, the College's annual journal of literature and art.

ENG 2365 - British Romanticism (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Surveys literature of the British Romantic period from 1785-1832. Students practice close reading, critical thinking, and expository writing as they read and analyze a range of representative works. Political writing and memoir supplement examination of the defining poetry of the era. Issues include debates about religious and political freedom; perceptions of nature and environment; social transformations for men, women, and families; abolitionism, rights, and citizenship; colonialism; and imperial activity.

ENG 2390 - Regional Literature in English (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

The Irish have long been noted for their verbal skills as storytellers and poets. In this course, we shall analyze and discuss a variety of Irish poetry and drama, concentrating on modern and contemporary authors. In particular, we shall discuss the literature within its nationalistic, historical, literary and cultural contexts. Further, we shall also be able to examine some literature, where appropriate, in its geographical context. Poets and playwrights include, among others, Swift, Synge, Yeats, O'Casey, Keane, Boland, Heaney, Friel

ENG 2410 - Revolution and Resistance in Nineteenth-Century Poetry (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Examines selected readings in English language poetry of the nineteenth century. Focus on understanding and analysis of poems through writing and discussion emphasizing the transformative social upheavals, literary movements, poetic practices, and technological developments of the period.

ENG 2415 - Medieval Knights and Monsters (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Introducing you to the first ten centuries of British literature from the 7th century CE to the 17th century CE, you will meet the voices and language of our Anglophone forebears. From obscure poets and balladeers, to polemicists and self-publicists, and on to the political and cultural shakers of bygone ages, these voices from the past will find new expression as we critically read and write, as well as orally and aurally explore, the medieval knights and monsters that populate British literature prior to the Restoration of King Charles II to England's throne in 1660.

ENG 2777 - Topics - 0-4 cr.

Explores topics.

ENG 2830 - Banned Books (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Framed by the question of why reading matters, this course explores the history of recent book bans and challenges—documented requests to remove materials from schools or libraries—and the related histories of censorship and debates about age-appropriateness. We will focus on close reading and analysis of at least three novels that have been frequently challenged since the end of the 20th century; the specific requests or legal actions taken against them; the political, social, and cultural contexts of those actions; and the implications for both individual readers and the common good. The reading list may also include children's or young adult fiction. Students will choose an additional text that has been recently challenged for the focus of their final project.

ENG 3010 - Trauma and Recovery: Medicine and Literature (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

A course in literature and narrative medicine. If we know that trauma cannot be told without a witness who encourages the tale by offering words and gestures of sympathy, we also know that to bear witness to trauma is to share its burden. Disciplined objectivity and reducing the patient to his illness have traditionally protected clinicians in the health care fields from experiencing the trauma of "caring too much" for their patients. But practitioners in the Health Humanities argue for the recovery of humanity in health care. They argue that encouraging the stories of both patients and family members invites all sufferers to find meaning in their pain, and to work towards emotional, if not always physical, healing. The field of Health Humanities positions the literature classroom – with its emphasis upon close reading, attention to semiotics, analysis of gesture, the mending of fractured narratives, and the adoption of alien points of view – as a safe place to learn to listen to trauma. And, while reading literature enables students to practice authentic listening, reflective writing shared in groups enables students to make meaning from their own trauma and to begin this rich process of storytelling. In this course we will closely read and analyze the narratives of wounded patients, healers, and family witnesses while we write and share our own.

Equivalent Course: HHU 3010

ENG 3300 - Creative Writing: Fiction and Nonfiction (Integrations : VIFA - Fine Arts) - 4 cr.

Explores the reading of appropriate fiction and writing of short weekly pieces and a final short story. The class includes presentations on technique. Students need not be English majors. Work from this class is often published in the St. Scholastica literary journal, Out of Words.

ENG 3301 - Creative Writing: Poetry (Integrations : VIFA - Fine Arts) - 4 cr.

Explores the reading and discussion of poetry to learn technique from published poets. A final portfolio of poetry required which will include students' choice of their best work. Students need not be English majors. Work from class is often published in the St. Scholastica literary journal, Out of Words.

ENG 3315 - American Short Story (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Chronological survey of the development of the American short story as well as a survey of selected short story theory and criticism. Students will read stories by a variety of American short story writers, beginning in the 19th century and continuing into the present. Discussion will focus on themes, the contexts in which the stories were written, and story structure.

ENG 3316 - Contemporary Ethnic American Poetry (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Organized as a survey of poetry from four different Ethnic American traditions. Lessons focus on poetic forms; literary techniques; and the historical, cultural, and political conditions that produce and shape contemporary Ethnic American poetry.

ENG 3325 - Brexit Sixteenth-Century Style (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Exploring English literary works that either reflect, or culturally impacted, the politically volatile years of the sixteenth century, "Brexit Sixteenth-Century Style" analyzes the literary significance of Henry VIII's own version of Brexit, which led to his nation's break from Rome. Focusing on the most important texts that demonstrate the political and religious turmoil of the period, students discover and analyze the varied voices of dissent or agreement, while considering the division that inevitably followed this seismic shift in national religious identity. At all times, the power of English literature to persuade, cajole, or subvert will be foremost in our minds. Likewise, consideration of the social and political implications of sixteenth-century literary endeavors will ensure a contextual appreciation for the social justice implications of this period's Brexit changes, while offering moments of reflection on similar populist and nationalist movements in the twenty-first century. "What," we will ask, "can sixteenth-century literature tell us about our own lives and how to live according to those values we hold dear?"

ENG 3330 - Theatre: Greek - Elizabethan (Integrations : VIFA - Fine Arts) Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Survey of major historical developments in theatre from the birth of theatre performance in ancient Greece through Roman theatre to medieval liturgical drama. The course concludes with Elizabethan theatre and includes study of technical developments as well as historical contexts. Classes focus on production as well as the literary perspective. Equivalent Course: THE 3330

ENG 3335 - Sexploitation in Jacobean Drama (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Explores the dramatic output of playwrights during the socially distinctive reign of King James I, hence the period's designation, Jacobean. This course will provide an in-depth examination of non-Shakespearean theatrical production in the seventeenth century, thus bridging the divide between studies of Shakespeare, later Restoration drama, and beyond.

ENG 3345 - War and Paradise Lost (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Discovering the significance of the seventeenth-century's greatest Puritan writer, John Milton, while situating his poetic and polemic literary endeavors in the contexts of their time, students of "War and Paradise Lost" will study a wealth of material related to the tumultuous years that led to the beheading of King Charles I. Close reading of literature produced by protagonists from both sides of a bloody civil conflict allows us to consider the social justice implications of written communication as a weapon of war and peace, and as oppression of minority voices, especially women. Turbulent times that are mirrored in the divisiveness of today's social and political upheavals offer insight into the power of English literature to inspire, persuade, and ultimately lead a nation down a path of self-destruction through religious dissent.

ENG 3355 - Pre-Modern British Literature (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Surveying British literature from the beginning until 1500, Pre-Modern British Literature includes a range of narrative, lyric, and dramatic texts. Introduces early stages of language (English, French, Irish, Latin, Welsh, Norse), with attention to late Middle English. Examines literature within literary, linguistic, historical, and cultural contexts.

ENG 3361 - Victorian Bodies (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Examines literary texts that engage the problem of embodiment and the proliferation and representation of diverse bodies during Queen Victoria's reign (1837-1901). This course focuses on close reading and analysis of literature alongside some of the cultural, political, scientific, and theological texts whose discourses shaped and classified Victorian bodies.

ENG 3370 - Studies in Women's Literature (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 2-4 cr.

Studies focused on, for example, marriage in women's fiction, mother-daughter literature, or Asian-American women writers.

ENG 3375 - Geographies of the Nineteenth-Century Novel (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Investigates the novel in the 19th century, with a focus on identity and social environment. The course emphasizes analysis and discussion of noteworthy novels, and includes readings on theories of place and the history of the novel in English.

ENG 3450 - Rhetorics of Health, Medicine, and Social Justice (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Rhetorics of Health and Medicine is an interdisciplinary field concerning communication in healthcare. In particular, it attends to how language and symbols are used in medicine, nursing, communities, and public health. It can include patient-provider communication, pharmaceutical advertising, and health literacy. In this course, we pay particular attention to reproductive justice, women's health, and disability, as well as how racism, transphobia, and homophobia manifest in health communication.

ENG 3470 - Autobiographies of Women in Healthcare (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Autobiographical texts exist at the intersection of story, memory, experience, identity, embodiment, space, agency, and literacy. Autobiographical texts by women share unique perspectives otherwise missing from the public record, and texts by women working in and around healthcare, in particular, illuminate and sometimes contradict prevailing narratives about the history of medicine. Students in ENG 3470 will read texts from a variety of genres and autobiographical forms, and from women of different eras, backgrounds, and experience, to ask important questions about public/private, truth/fact, and more. Students will use active reading, thoughtful discussion, and critical writing, to engage with women's life writing and develop a new understanding of how women tell stories about themselves.

ENG 3777 - Topics - 0-4 cr.

Explores topics.

ENG 3830 - Piracy and Criminality (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Investigates literature and letters of the English-speaking colonies of North America, with connections to the Revolutionary period and the literature of the early republic. Explores writers' responses to the political, social and literary concerns of the period, with attention to issues of form. Readings and discussions focus on works that flout restrictions, exceed received ideas, and upset social norms. Topics addressed include political revolutions, piracy, the supernatural, criminality, and gender variance. The course promotes analysis of writing from multiple genres and modes, and may include secondary readings on history, culture, and theories of literature.

ENG 3950 - London Arts and Culture (Conceptions : VCLI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Combines a spring-semester course on the Duluth campus with a study abroad experience in London, England during May. Students will experience the city after encountering it in fiction and will see performances at multiple venues, visit literary sites and museums, and tour the rebuilt Globe Theatre. This course exposes students to the social and cultural landscapes of London as they intersect with literary and performance texts. Offered every other spring semester. Application required.

Equivalent Course: HON 3950

ENG 4400 - Shakespeare and Social Justice (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Considering the importance of Shakespeare as a tool for advancing social justice in contemporary society, this course approaches five Shakespeare plays as literary and performance constructs. Students interrogate the social justice implications of Shakespeare's plays, including intolerance and gender violence, food poverty and land justice, racial tension, and, most specifically, the ever-increasing prison population. Equity, diversity, and inclusion on a local/global scale informs the analysis of Shakespeare, not as a long-dead white male, but as an educational tool for empowering the powerless in the USA, and beyond.

ENG 4410 - Individual Author (Integrations : VILI - Literature) - 4 cr.

Studies one English or American writer, with special focus on the writer's important works and the cultural, historical and literary contexts. Offerings may include, but are not limited to, Jane Austen, Geoffrey Chaucer, Toni Morrison, and Virginia Woolf.

ENG 4415 - Writing Nature (Integrations : VIOP - Electives) - 4 cr.

Engaging ways in which language can be used to explore the natural world and humankind's place within it, Writing Nature takes a seminar approach to analyzing and producing writing that centers on natural and built environments. Emphasis is on reading nature writing, practicing nature writing from field notes to polished essays, and adapting discourse for various audiences and purposes with attention to issues of the environment and sustainability.

ENG 4425 - Literary Theory - 4 cr.

Introduces literary theory, ancient to post-modern. The course surveys major theoretical trends in the West from classical, medieval, modern, and post-modern periods. Students will also articulate and examine critically their own theoretical assumptions about literature and literary study. Junior or senior standing or instructor permission required.

ENG 4430 - English Language and Linguistics (Integrations : VIOP - Electives) - 4 cr.

Introduces the history of the English language, theories of grammar and major topics in linguistics. Class discussions will focus on a variety of questions: how language got started, what it is, where English comes from, how English has changed, the extent to which there is such a thing as correct English, what dialects are and how they are significant, how words and their semantic values change, what the major approaches to grammar are, how people learn language, how the mind processes language, how linguistics can help teachers and how systems of writing arose and developed.
